Populism in Europe and the World

INSTRUCTOR: Paula D. Ganga, paula.ganga@rochester.edu

CLASS TIME: MW 9:00-10:15 AM, Location TBD.

OFFICE HOURS: 10:30-11:30 AM on Mondays, or by appointment in Harkness Hall 101. The safest way to get in touch is to email me and check I am in the office.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:
Populism is one of the political buzzwords of the early 21st century. It is central to current debates about politics, from radical right parties in Europe to left-wing presidents in Latin America to the Tea Party, Bernie Sanders and Donald Trump in the United States. But populism is also one of the most contested concepts in the social sciences. In line with a growing body of literature, populism should be defined in ideational terms, i.e., as a worldview that considers society to be ultimately separated into two homogeneous and antagonistic camps, “the pure people” versus “the corrupt elite,” and which argues that politics should be an expression of the volonté générale (general will) of the people. This course will provide an introduction to populism in theory and practice.

The first part of the course will discuss how scholars from different parts of the world studied populism since this phenomenon entered the political and social science agenda in the late 1960s. Is populism an ideology? A strategy? A style of politics? A certain type of discourse? Something else? And, crucially, who are “the people” in populism? Could we, possibly, re-conceptualize populism in a way that is at the same time minimal and with sufficient discriminatory power, politically relevant, analytically compelling, operationally feasible, and clearly pointing to an opposite pole?

Beyond defining populism, this course also examines this phenomenon in the entirety of its geographical variants. Populism is an omnipresent, multifaceted, and ideologically boundless phenomenon. What distinguishes its various manifestations in Europe, Latin America, the United States, and elsewhere across time (old vs. new populisms), region (western vs. eastern; but also Nordic, Baltic, and Southern European), regime type in which they develop (democracy vs. non-democracy), and ideological hue (right vs. left populisms)?

A second part of this course will look at actual populist strategies, how populist leaders gain their appeal, what social conditions increase the likelihood of a populist victory, how populists gain and maintain power. What are the determinants of voting motivation for populist parties? And how do they differ from mainstream parties? This course will also examine what happens once populists come into office, as has happened several times in both Europe and Latin America? Cases such as Hungary, Greece and Venezuela are studied in order to understand the way in which populism comes to power and governs.
LEARNING GOALS

In this course, students will:

• examine key concepts and theories that describe and explain the current phenomenon of populism.

• explore this concept in a comparative perspective drawing on the populist experience across the globe.

• develop oral presentation skills through class presentations and class discussions.

• practice research and analytical skills through three short papers on different aspects of populism.

REQUIREMENTS

Attendance
Attendance to all class meetings is required.

Readings
Required readings should be completed before the class for which they are assigned. The midterm exam and final paper will require you to have a strong comprehension of the material covered in both the readings and the class discussions.

Examinations
There will be an in-class midterm examination as well as a final exam.

Class participation
All students are expected to come prepared to participate in class and contribute with arguments and questions to the class discussion.

Class presentations
Each student will be expected to make short class presentations on readings for that day and set the discussion up with questions on the material covered.

Paper Assignment
There will be a paper due toward the end of the semester. This project is a 10 page paper based on the course themes.

Course Outline

Introduction ................................................................. Jan 16
Part I. Definitions, theory and practice .......................... Jan 23-March 04
Midterm Examination ..................................................... March 06
Part II. The US and Western Europe ........................... March 18-April 03
Part III. Eastern Europe ................................................. April 08-17
Part IV. The rest of the world ........................................ April 22-May 01
Final Exam .............................................................. Exam Period
PROCEDURES:

Office Hours
I will hold office hours each week to discuss substantive questions about readings, lectures, exams, and papers. As a general rule of thumb, if you have a substantive question that probably requires more than one or two sentences to answer thoroughly, I recommend that you come to office hours, email me a time to meet or save the question for class. This will be better for everyone because it not only saves time, but I will also be able to sit with you and work through the material in a much more comprehensive way, and in a way that I know will be clear to you. Moreover, people in class probably will have the same questions, and if you ask the question in class, other people will benefit as well. If you have administrative or organizational questions, however, I encourage you to email me first.

Late Assignments
Deadlines are strict. No extensions will be granted in the absence of a genuine emergency or documented illness. Predictable events, such as a heavy workload or extracurricular activities, are not normally considered grounds for an extension. All appeals for extensions will be considered on a case-by-case basis. Late papers will be penalized one full letter grade for each day they are late.

Grading
Grades will be based on the absolute merit of your work, so there is no grading curve employed in this class. Your final grade will be calculated as follows:

- Participation ................. 10%
- Class Presentations .......... 10%
- Midterm Examination .......... 30%
- Paper .......................... 15%
- Final Examination ............ 35%

Grading Disputes
You may email me about a grading concern after a 48-hour waiting period. You are entitled to a satisfactory explanation for why you received a particular grade. If you are not satisfied with the explanation provided by me, you may submit a written explanation for why you believe that your work was misgraded. The work will then be regraded by me with the understanding that I may ultimately issue a grade that is better, the same, or worse than the original grade.

Plagirism
Plagiarism or other acts of academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. As defined by the University of Rochester Honor Council, plagiarism is “the act of passing off as one’s own the ideas or writings of another.”

READING ASSIGNMENTS

In addition to the books and articles below, you should read the international affairs section of a major national newspaper, such as the New York Times or the Washington Post, on a daily basis. You might also consider reading the Economist, which is generally considered the best weekly news magazine available. Class discussion will often include references to contemporary political and economic events, so it is critical that you are aware of important current developments in the world in order to be able to examine the real life consequences of the concepts studied in class.

January 16: Introduction to the class

January 23: Populism so far. Timeline and conceptualizations

January 28: Re-conceptualizing populism: Democratic illiberalism vs. liberal democracy

January 30: Populism, authoritarianism and democracy

February 04: Roots of the populist surge

February 06: Populism and the economic crisis. What is the causal arrow?

February 11: Populism and the economic crisis. Consequences

February 13: What do populists do in office?

February 20: The appeal of populist leadership

February 25: The populist discourse: Forging the people and producing electoral majorities

February 27: Who is the populist voter?

March 04: The geography and varieties of the populist phenomenon

March 06: Midterm Examination

Spring break

March 18: The history of US populism

March 20: Modern US Populism

March 25: The UK
March 27: France

April 01: Italy

April 03: Greece

April 08: Eastern Europe

April 10: Czech Republic

April 15: Poland

April 17: Hungary
Muller, Jan-Werner. 2011. ”The Hungarian Tragedy.” Dissent (Spring): 5-10.

April 22: Russia

April 24: Populism in Latin America

April 29: Populism in Africa

May 01: Conclusions to the course

Final Examination