Artists

CRAIG CLIPPER (Set & Costumes) is a NY City based designer who works both on stage and on television. He has designed for the New York City Opera and Broadway. He has also worked on the Rosie O'Donnell show. His work has been seen regionally at Buffalo's Arena Stage. Clipper designed the 1994 UR production of Tennessee Williams' Orpheus Descending and the 1998 production of Chris Durang's Beyond Therapy.

ALEXANDROS (Music & Sound) is an innovative Greek composer who moved to New York in 1980. He has composed and performed for the Next Wave Festival 1998 at BAM, LaMaMa Theater worldwide, and the Drama Dept., NYC. He has been commissioned as a composer by renowned painters and sculptors including Muramura Kudo, Yiannis Spyropoulos, and Ekaterina Savchenko. His work will be available on the internet at his forthcoming website www.ApolloTemple.com.

IOSH BRADFORD (Lighting) is a graduate of Middlebury College and received his MFA from New York University. His recent credits include Camille for the Olney Theatre, Don Juan in Hell for Middlebury College, Alvin Alley American Dance Theatre's Spring Gala, Antigone and Italian American Reconciliation for Monmouth University, and an exhibit for Pfizer Pharmaceuticals. His television credits include Forgive or Forget and The Chris Rock Show.
