

OPEN TO UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS
IN ASE

EDE 497-1

Black Girls & Women in Education

SPRING 2024

Dr. Tiffany Steele
Assistant Professor of Education
Higher Education Program
FDI Faculty Affiliate

Course Description

The experiences of Black girls and women in the U.S. educational system are unique. When revisiting the purpose of U.S. education and its history, Black girls and women have been pioneers for minoritized communities to participate in the educational system. However, there is limited research or exploration on the transitional experiences Black girls have to post-secondary education.

For this course, we will explore the intersectional experiences of Black girls and women in educational spaces and the history of their journeys to define institutional needs that can support Black girls' transition to post-secondary opportunities.

Schedule

Mondays, In-Person
4:50 pm - 7:30 pm
Warner School of Education