

CONSTITUTIONAL STRUCTURE AND RIGHTS
PSC 223
Mr. Jackson
Fall 2013

COURSE SYLLABUS

Assigned reading has been posted on Blackboard as .pdf files under “Course Materials.”

This course concerns how the Constitution of the United States sets up the structure of government in three distinct ways: “Horizontal” (among the three branches of the federal government); “Vertical” (allocation of power between the federal government and states); and “Individual” (rights of individuals vis-à-vis the federal and state governments). In addition to the Constitution itself, the principal vehicle for our examination will be more than 200 years of Supreme Court opinions, starting with Marbury v. Madison in 1803. As a result, for most of the course, the issue is less an underlying normative one of whether the Constitution has set up the “right” structure, but, rather, the positive one of filling out the implications of the structure that the Constitution has, indeed, set up. But in that examination, it is essential to develop a sense of how well the Supreme Court is doing in explaining its outcomes in terms of the Constitution.

In the cases we will read, the Court is invariably construing the Constitution of the United States, either specific provisions or authority and limitations arising out of what the Court perceives to be the underlying structure embodied in the Constitution. In every case, you should make the effort to determine which provision is (or provisions are) involved and read the provision(s) carefully for yourself—the syllabus that follows does not “assign” specific provisions of the Constitution, but those provisions are the foundation of everything we will do in the course.
