Overview. How does the Supreme Court really decide cases? Are judges as activist as politicians claim? In this course, we will explore these questions by addressing how political and social forces influence American law and legal institutions, and vice versa. We'll divide the course into roughly two parts: (1) judicial politics and decision making and (2) law and its relation to the rest of society. By the end of this course, you'll have a solid understanding of how the American legal system works, you'll understand the basics of legal (analytic) reasoning, and you'll understand why judges are sometimes accused simply of being politicians.

Note: This course meets the "Legal Studies" requirement for the Legal Studies minor.

Prerequisites. There are no prerequisites for this course. You are expected to come to each class prepared and ready to discuss the material. The practice of law is based on argumentation and rhetoric; participation in class debates and discussion is therefore essential and will be a key component of your grade. Also, reading law is difficult the first time you do it and requires you to think in a slightly different way (which we will teach you); please give yourself ample time to work through the readings.

Grading. Your grade in this class will be composed of

- Paper #1 (5–7 pages, due in hard copy at start of class on October 10) – 20%
- Midterm (in class on October 29) – 20%
- Paper #2 (5–7 pages, due in hard copy at start of class on November 26) – 20%
- Final (December 21) – 30%
- Class Participation – 10%

Both the midterm and the final will be a combination of IDs, short answer, and essay. They will be closed-book and closed-note. We will not take attendance; the class participation component of your grade will hinge on you coming to class, participating in debates and discussions, and volunteering to explain cases and concepts.

Office Hours and Email. I have an open-door office policy, meaning that you are welcome to stop by at any point between approximately 9:30am and 5pm Monday through Friday, excluding around noon for lunch. (Because of the open-door policy, I don't usually accept appointments.) For those who prefer office hours, I have office hours Wednesdays 10am to noon; I'll definitely be in my office then. I'm always available by email. I encourage everyone to stop by and be in touch.

Paper Extension Policy. Hard copies of papers must be turned in at the start of class on the due date. (Emailed versions of papers will not be accepted due to the additional burden this places on the teaching staff – sorry.) Attempting to turn a paper in late is extremely unfair to your colleagues. Extensions will be granted only in case of (1) a death in the family or (2) a unforeseen medical emergency. In case of such an emergency, please let me know as soon as possible; in most cases, I will require supporting documentation (e.g., a doctor's note) out of fairness to the other students. Also in the interest of fairness, (1) unsubstantiated requests for extensions will be denied summarily and (2) retroactive extensions (e.g., extensions requested after the paper is submitted) will never be granted.

If you do not have an extension, and you turn in a paper late, you will be docked one third of one letter grade for every 24 hours that the paper is late. Late penalties begin accruing from the start of class (11:05am) the day the paper is due. Thus, if your paper earned a B+, but you turned it in a few hours late (up to 11:05am the following day), you will be receive a B; if you turned it in 30 hours late, you would receive a B-.

Exam Policy. Both exams are closed book and closed note (and, by extension, no Internet and no cell phones). The midterm and final exam dates are firm. Missed exams may only be re-taken under the following circumstances: (1) a death in the family, (2) participation in a University-sponsored academic or sporting event (extra-curricular events do not count), (3) unforeseen medical emergency. In the case of (1) and (2), you must inform me within 24 hours of the exam that you will miss it. In some cases, we will require supporting documentation out of fairness to the other students.

Academic Honesty. We encourage you to discuss the course readings and assignments with your fellow students. However, all written work must be done independently and not in collaboration with one another. The two papers will require citations and a “Works Cited” section following the Chicago Manual of Style format (or some other consistently used format), and both exams will be closed book, closed note, and closed Internet (no cell phones, etc.). Lastly, all class activities must be performed in accordance with the University of Rochester’s Academic Honesty Policy (<http://www.rochester.edu/college/honesty>). Under UR rules, I must report possible policy violations to the Board on Academic Honesty. Your reputation is the most important thing you have, especially at this stage of your academic career; please do not tarnish it.

University of Rochester CARE Network. The primary goal of the CARE network is to identify students in, or heading toward distress. As a faculty member, I’ve been encouraged to submit CARE reports on behalf of students who appear to be struggling academically or personally, and who may need inclusive, multi-layered support from the campus community. The CARE administrator shares information only with staff who need to know it in order to help you. More information about CARE can be found at <http://www.rochester.edu/care>. Please don’t hesitate to reach out to me or to someone you trust if you are struggling or feel overwhelmed.

Readings. We will read excerpts from the following texts:

- Baum, Lawrence, American Courts: Process and Policy (7th Edition, Wadsworth)
- Epstein, Lee and Jack Knight, The Choices Justices Make
- Murphy, Walter F. and C. Herman Pritchett, Lee Epstein, and Jack Knight, Courts, Judges & Politics: An Introduction to the Judicial Process (6th Edition, McGraw Hill) (hereinafter Murphy et al)
- Rosenberg, Gerald N., The Hollow Hope: Can Courts Bring About Social Change? (2nd Edition, University of Chicago Press).
- Segal, Jeffrey A. and Harold J. Spaeth, The Supreme Court and the Attitudinal Model Revisited

We will also read various articles and excerpts of court cases. Most of the readings (including book excerpts and court cases) will be posted on Blackboard. If you wish to buy hard copies of these books, they will be available for purchase on Amazon.com and at other online retailers.
