Find us along the way
or join us at the end!

Originally choreographed by Anna Halprin Restaged by the UR Program of Dance and Movement with support from The Tamalpa Institute in consultation with Rosario Sammartino

This moving art installation will be made up of UR students and Rochester area community members who process through town with blank placards, collecting the voices of people encountered along the way in answer to the question "What is important to you?" Poetry readings and spoken word events will happen along the route, culminating in a community ritual of listening.

Featuring Spoken Word by Artists:

Almeta Whitis, Bart White, Jennifer Maloney, Lavonne Barfield, Karen Faris Grace Lynch and more.
