

Politics and Policies in the U.S. Health Care System

HIS 373W/473 PM 420/PSCI 317W
Spring 2021

Tuesdays on Zoom 2-3:15
Thursday Asynchronous
Office Hours

Instructor: Mical Raz, MD, PhD micalraz@rochester.edu

Office Hours: Thursday 2-3 pm on zoom. Other hours by appointment.

Course Synopsis:

HIS 373W (US Health Policy and Politics): This course examines the formation and evolution of American health policy from a political and historical perspective. Concentrating on developments from the early twentieth century to the present, the focus of readings and discussions will be political forces and institutions and historical and cultural contexts.

Among the topics covered are periodic campaigns for national health reform, the rise of hospitals as the main site of medical care, the formation of the VA health system, the creation of Medicare and Medicaid and the further evolution of these programs, the rise to dominance of economists and economic analysis in the shaping of health policy, incremental and state-based vs. comprehensive and federal initiatives, the formation and failure of the Clinton administration's health reform agenda, and national health reform during the Obama administration and the Affordable Care Act. The course will end with current health care debates and attempts to scale back, undo or undermine the ACA.

The College's credit hour policy on undergraduate courses is to award 4 credit hours for courses that meet for the equivalent of 3 periods of 50 minutes each week. Students enrolled in HIS 373W are expected to devote at least one hour each week to identifying the main lines of argument in course readings, working alone or in groups, and to researching in depth their topics for the final seminar paper.

Required Book:

Starr, Paul - THE SOCIAL TRANSFORMATION OF AMERICAN MEDICINE

Copies are available at the Barnes & Noble bookstore in College Town and it is available as an e-book through our library. All other readings will be available on Blackboard.

Graduate vs Undergraduate Tracks:

This course is cross listed for graduate students and undergraduate students. The expectations are the same apart from the final research paper, which will be longer and require significant primary source engagement for graduate students. Graduate students are welcome to contact the professor to tailor the course to their learning needs.

Covid:

These are unprecedented times. We are all doing our best and facing different challenges. I hope to make our class a respectful place for growth and learning and plan to be considerate of the challenges each and every one of you are facing.

Seminar Participation and Grading:

This is a seminar course in which active, well-prepared student participation is expected. Reading should be done in advance of the seminar, not during, and students should come prepared for an informed discussion. This seminar requires a significant amount of writing, revising, and commenting on peer writing. Given the asynchronous nature of our Thursday class, you are responsible for much of your active learning, I am available to support you in this journey.

am informed in advance.

Academic Honesty: All assignments and activities associated with this course must be performed in accordance with the University of Rochester's Academic Honesty Policy. Cheating and plagiarism are serious offenses and will be treated as such. Anyone who engages in such activities will be turned over to the College Board on Academic Honesty for disciplinary action, as outlined at <http://www.rochester.edu/College/honesty/>. For a helpful discussion of plagiarism (including subtle instances), see the American Historical Association's "Defining Plagiarism," <https://www.historians.org/teaching-and-learning/teaching-resources-for-historians/plagiarism-curricular-materials-for-history-instructors/defining-plagiarism.1>

Students with Disabilities: The University of Rochester respects and welcomes students of all backgrounds and abilities. In the event you encounter any barrier(s) to full participation in this course due to the impact of disability, please contact the Office of Disability Resources. The access coordinators in the Office of Disability Resources can meet with you to discuss the barriers you are experiencing and explain the eligibility process for establishing academic accommodations. You can reach the Office of Disability Resources at: disability@rochester.edu; (585) 276-5075; Taylor Hall.

Distance learning:

This is an online course that requires no specialized equipment. You will, however, need a computer, webcam, and stable internet connection in order to be able to participate in Zoom meetings. If you can, please try to minimize internet usage in your household during these sessions in order to maximize bandwidth for lecture and camera. If you can, it's preferable that your camera be turned on when on Zoom; it is fine, however, to use a virtual background if you prefer. And please be aware that it is University policy that all of our Zoom sessions be recorded, so that students can access them as needed. I will delete all of these recordings at the end of the course.

Writing Skills: We will discuss each writing assignment in detail during class. I am also always willing to talk about writing assignments individually: to help you plan an essay, work through the process, or review comments. I encourage all students to take advantage of this by coming to office hours. Another resource is the UR Writing and Speaking Center, which is dedicated to helping writers at all skill levels to improve. You can reach them at 585- 273-3577 or at <https://writing.rochester.edu/OnlineSchedule/AppointmentScheduleEnterStudentID.php>

Detailed Breakdown of Course Requirements:

Verbal Participation: Total 10%

1 - Your thoughtful contributions to our online zoom class are an important part of your learning experience. You are expected to come prepared, participate in the discussion, and engage respectfully with your peers. (5)

2- For each module, two students will be responsible for leading the discussion and preparing a few questions to stimulate conversation. (5%)

Written Engagement: Total 15%

Discussion board posts (Choose 4 out of 10 prompts): 10%

You will be asked to respond to 4 out of ten prompts on the reading assignments and to write approximately 500-750 words that incorporate your thoughts on the reading and questions that may arise. Your posts should be carefully written and edited prior to posting.

Responses to discussion board posts (Respond 4 times): 5%

You are expected to read and engage with the discussion board posts and respond briefly to different posts on different topics. The more the better, to create a conversation, but at least 4 times to get credit.

Op-Ed Assignment: Total 25%

1 -Share chosen op-ed plus analysis: 2.5%

You will choose a scholarly op-ed you enjoy (Made by History for Wash Post; The Monkey Cage, JAMA Health Forum), briefly describe its argument and why you found it compelling, and post this on Blackboard and be prepared to discuss it in class.

2 – Commentary on peer Op-Ed:2.5%

We will workshop our op-eds and you will provide written feedback (on Blackboard) to one peer, approximately 500-750 words. This peer will be assigned to you.

3- Final Op-Ed: 20%

Based on comments from myself and your peer you will submit a final op-ed, 750-1200 words. My hope is some op-eds will be pitched to newspapers for publication.

Research Paper: Total 50%

1 - Detailed topic proposal and annotated bibliography: 5%

Early in the semester you will identify a topic of interest and find relevant sources for an original research paper. The topic proposal consists of a title for your project, a one-page abstract, and a bibliography of the list of sources (primary and secondary) you will use for your paper. For the abstract, make sure that your argument, key questions, and main sources are clear while limiting yourself to 250 words. For the bibliography, include basic information about at least 10 sources, letting the reader know what they are and why you are including them in the bibliography.

You will upload this to Blackboard.

2- Commentary on peer Research Paper: 5%

You will read the draft research paper of one peer (will be assigned to you) and provide written feedback on their work. This feedback is designed to help you develop your peer review skills and your critical reading and will help your peer. Neither your research paper grade nor your peers grade will be affected by this, it gets graded separately. You submit the peer review on Blackboard.

3- Based on feedback from myself on your draft and the peer review you receive you submit your final research paper by May 13.

Final Research Paper: 40% approx. 15-20 pages.

Library Resources:

As part of your research paper, you will need to identify primary and secondary sources. These resources will vary depending on your primary discipline (history, public health, political science).

Stephanie Barrett is the public health librarian. She is a resource for questions regarding the library website, research, citations, and more. You can email her at sbarrett@library.rochester.edu or you can schedule an appointment with her at <http://libcal.lib.rochester.edu/appointments?u=31920>.

Other valuable resources for source identification are:

Lara Nicosia, History Outreach Librarian lnicosia@library.rochester.edu

Anna Siebach-Larsen, Director of Robbins Library alarsen@library.rochester.edu

Miranda Mims, Director of Rare Books and Special Collections mmims@library.rochester.edu

Andrea Reithmayr, Special Collections Librarian areithmayr@library.rochester.edu

Melissa Mead, University Archivist mmead@library.rochester.edu
