DEVELOPMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF BLACK ASL AT THE INTERSECTION OF RACE, LANGUAGE, AND DISABILITY

Dr. Joseph Hill will present a comprehensive overview covering the studies on the emergence, maintenance, and structure of Black ASL. The historical and linguistic changes in Black ASL align with the U.S. educational, political, and cultural landscapes that have been identified as the sociolinguistic and geographical factors in the formation of Black ASL. Through the case of Black ASL and Black Deaf individuals' experiences, the audience will better understand the elements of intersectionality and the interconnection of the U.S. educational, political, and cultural institutions.

The lecture will be given in American Sign Language.
Spoken English interpretation will be provided.
