

University of Rochester

11th Biennial Graduate Epistemology Conference

April 1 – 2, 2022

Call for Papers

Keynote Speaker:
Miriam McCormick,
University of Richmond

Distinguished Alumni Speaker:
Matthew Frise, Santa Clara University

The University of Rochester Department of Philosophy invites graduate students to submit to the 11th Biennial Graduate Epistemology Conference. We welcome submissions in the field of analytic epistemology, broadly construed. Such submissions can include papers that address epistemological issues in philosophy of science, ethics, philosophy of mind, philosophy of language, philosophy of religion, or metaphysics.

Guidelines

Paper length: 3,500 words, excluding notes and references

Abstract: 200 words or fewer

Format: PDF only

Papers should be suitable for blind review: please omit any self-identifying marks within the body of the paper.

Submission Deadline: January 1st, 2022

The papers can be submitted via EasyChair, which will allow for the identifying information of the author to be submitted in a separate form, here: <https://easychair.org/conferences/?conf=urtec11>
(You will need to make an EasyChair account.)

The Graduate Conference will connect with a conference celebrating the work of Richard Feldman and Earl Conee on April 2nd - April 3rd. Speakers will include: David Christensen, Stewart Cohen, Thomas Kelly, Sharon Ryan, and Jonathan Vogel.

Please direct any questions to urepistemology2022@gmail.com